SCHOOL PERSONNEL

BUTLER HIGH SCHOOL

Ralph E. Pollock, Supt.

BUTLER, OHIO

March 26, 1959

Class of 1959:

James M. Barrie, the Scotch novelist once said that, "The life of every man is a diary in which he means to write one story, and writes another; and his humblest hour is when he compares the volume as it is with what he vowed to make it."

The beginning of your life story is being written now as you complete your high school career and make your plans for the future.

To say that I wish you a successful future is not just a glib comment. Success to me is measured in terms of how well each of you will do the things you are most capable of doing. Being successful in this way will give you the greatest personal satisfaction and you will make your greatest contribution to society.

Success thus defined will not come easily. Henry Wadsworth Longfellow points out that, "The heights by great men reached and kept were not attained by sudden flight. But they while their companions slept were toiling upward in the night." Longfellow implies that you must give up present comforts for greater things in the future. Many people are not willing to pay this price. Each of you must make a decision at this point.

Elbert Hubbard makes this keen analysis, "One machine can do the work of fifty ordinary men. No machine can do the work of one extraordinary man." The extraordinary man is the successful man. This is true in any walk of life. I sincerely hope that many members of your class will be the extraordinary men of the future.

Sincerely yours,

Ralph E. Pollock

An Acknowledgment

We, the Seniors of 1959, would like to thank the merchants who have contributed to the publication of this book. Without them, the annual of 1959 would have been impossible.

We hope the readers of this book will show their appreciation by patronizing these merchants in their local cities. The advice and experience they have given us have proved to be invaluable.
